Harlem Bank Had No Official French Government Gets a New Notice of the Garfield's Action.

"I am very much surprised that the action of the Gartield Bank has been allowed to become public, as we had no notice that such was its intention. I saw W. H. One of the three was the Riverside State and another the Colonial State, and the Harlem State the other.

Mr. Hinckley said that if the report of the Garfield Bank's action was true, he ascribed it to a dispute between the State Banking Department and the Clearing House Committee.

He said there seemed to be a feeling against Harlem banks on the part of the Clearing-House Committee. For example, the Mount Morris Bank, which has $600,000 surplus, has been trying without avail for some time to get representation in the Clearing-House. For some reason or other the Clearing-House Committee wouldn't allow any National bank to cienr for them.

"We have heard nothing from Bank Supt. Preston or Bank Examiner Judson about this last phase of the situation," said Mr. Hinckley.

"I saw Mr. Preston Tuesday, and mentioned the fact that our bank might make a change, and he offered no objection."

Mr. Hinckley appeared much worried over the publication of the report about his bank. When asked if the Hariem Bank could stand a run he said: "Yes, if the pressure is not too great." He said that the bank's customers were

"Yes, if the pressure is not too great." He said that the bank's customers were principally small tradesmen who would be very much frightened at the published reports of possible trouble.

Cashier Poor, of the Garfield National, said this afternoon, that he was at a losse to understand how the report got abroad that his bank would cease acting as the clearing-house agent for the Harlem River Bank, after May 1.

"While it may be," he said, "that we do not cars to be the Clearing-House representatives of either the Harlem River, Colonial, or the Riverside hanks any longer than is necessary, we do not want to be understood contemplating any immediate severance of our connection with them.

Our relations with the Harlem River Bank have always been pleasant, and you may say that we have not, nor do we intend now, to give notice that we will not clear for the concern after May 1.

Among these assets are $60,000 worth of the Mather's Sons Company's notes and $276,000 of the same Company's stock. This stock was not sold with the last lot of securities because of a request of Levi C. Lathrop. Vice-President of the St. Nicholas Hank, who holds the same office in the Mather's Company, Mr. Lathrop asked that the sale be postponed until April 10. Three days before that date, however, the Mather Company asked for the appointment of a receiver.

Pacific Improvement Company Will Sell 125,000 Acres. (By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, April 28.—It is said that directors of the Pacific Improvement Company have decided to place property valued at from ten to twenty nillion dollars in charge of the land department of the Central Pacific Railroad for disposal. The Pacific Improvement Company and the Southern Pacific are practically one and the same, as the stock of both corporations is now chiefly owned by the same persons. One reason advanced for the selling of the Pacific Improvement Company is that Mrs. Stanford, who is a heavy stockholder, is anxious to secure a large amount of ready cash, in order to carry out the wishes of her late husband.

Another reason is that the affairs of the Pacific Improvement Company have not been prosperous. The officers, however, deny it is the intention to dissolve the corporation. The sale will include considerably over 125,000 acres of land, including 125 town sites, among which are Reno, Truckee. Herning, Williams, Montague and Mercedes.

RECEIVER APPLIED FOR REFUSED TO PARADE.

Commercial Loan and Trust Com- Four Officers of the Sixty-ninth to pany of Philadelphia in Trouble.

"The Evening World" Exposed Its They Would Not Attend Mass on Queer Methods in This City.

As a final result of "The Evening World's" expose of the Commercial Loan and Trust Company's method of doing was printed in this morning's papers: cation was made yesterday afternoon for receivers for the Commercial Loan and Trust Company of 1230 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa. The Company is 1250 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa. The Company is incorporated under the laws of West Virginia. Its authorised capital is 1500,000, of which, it has been said, 1103,000 has been paid in. The Company has done a general brokerage and loan business and has a branch office in Pittabura. Ps. The application for receivers was made by the bondholders of the Company, whose petition alleges that the Company only had $1,000 capital and its assets consist only of the contribution of the bondholders.

'The Evening World" told how this Company, represented by Messrs, Clarke and Johnson, was doing a thriving business in this city by preying on the credulity of poor people. It advertised o loan money in small sums at 6 per cast contained an alluring prospectus of the advantages to be gained by doing business with the firm.

An "Evening World" reporter in the found it was doing business in violation of the Banking laws of the State. People who patronized it were subjected to a steady, financial assessment with no material gain in view—to them. Failure to pay the assessment at the required time meant confiscation of the sum already paid. In fact, the methods of the concern were so shady that the attention of Bank Examiner Preston was called to it.

Unable to stand the glare of exposure the Commercial Loan and Trust Company closed its doors in Harlem, and the officers disappeared from public view.

Prior to this, however, it was learned that the Company was about to start a branch in Brooklyn. This little scheme was promptly nipped in the bud by exposure in the columns of "The Evening World," and since then, as far as can be learned, no effort has been made to resume business. The concern's main office was located in Philadelphia.

Edward A. Noblett, who was at one time the agent for the Commercial Loan and Trust Company, in this city, but who resigned his position, was seen at his office, 275 Broadway, by an "Evening World," reporter this morning.

"I have had no dealings with the Company since I severed my connection with it some weeks ago," said he. "The refusal of The World to handle any advertising of the Company was enough for me, and I resigned immediately,

"I do not know anything about its agency here, and am not aware of the movements of Clarke and Johnson, I did not know that the Philadelphia house had assigned."

religion in any shape or form has been allowed to become a subject of debate or strife, and National Guardsmen, not only in this city but all over the State are anxiously awaiting the outcome. The investigation will take place at the armory of the Sixty-ninth Battalion, where four non-commissioned officers will be court-martialled. The order for the court-martial was issued late last night by Major Denis McCarthy, President of the Dellinquency Board.

The slieged offenders, all of whom are attached to Company D. are Quartermaster-Sergt. John F. Johnson, Corpl. John Roach, Corpl. J. J. Dickinson and Corpl. Edward M. Maher. With the exception of Dickinson, all are Roman Catholics, to which church a majority of the battalion belongs.

The men, who are backed up by nearly every member of their company, say they are being persecuted, and that the persecution is really a continuation of the fight between the Duffy-Moran factions, which led to the old regiment being disbanded.

The charge upon which they will have to face a court-martial to-morrow night is that they failed to turn out in parade with the battalion on St. Patrick's day.

The slieged culprits take the stand that the parade in question was nothing more than a walk from the armory to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where services were held, and then back again. They say that in every sense of the word word it was purely a religious observance, and that their failure to paraticipate in it was not a breach of military rules, but that on the contrary the breach consists in charging them with the offense.

Sergt. Johnson is one of the best known men in the battalion. He was attached to the old regiment for years, and his son is also in the same company with him. Both were at the armory last night, and as soon as Major McCarthy is credited with having said, "is, if I get you before me I will fine you the full penalty for refusing to turn out on parade."

Johnson then made the claim that in any event the Major could not sit on the any event the Major could not sit on the same country.

full penalty for refusing to turn out on parade."

Johnson then made the claim that in any event the Major could not sit on the court-martial as he was prejudiced. A long wrangle followed and the men gathered around and indorsed all that the Sergeant said. The latter feels particularly sore, as he has never before been charged with any offense.

Gen. Louis Fitzgeraid declined this morning to express any opinion as to the merits of the case.

"It is not that I am not able to give you, offhand, a legal opinion," he said, "out I am considering the propriety of the case. This is the first time such a question has been raised, and it is full of interest to National Guardsmen. "It must came before me officially, and I will have to pass upon it. For that reason I do not care to discuss it now. In any event I do not think it right to anticipate the result of the court-martial."

anticipate the result of the court-martial."

So far as Dickinson is concerned, the general opinion seems to be that he has a clear case, as not being a Catholic he had no right to be ordered to parade at all to a Catholic church. That rule holds good in the Regular Army as well as the National Guard.

In case the court finds against the men to-morrow night, the latter will at once take the matter before the Supreme Court on the ground that religious liberty is attacked.

Johnson has already seen Major Duffy, the senior officer of the battalion, but that officer gave little comfort beyond saying that the court-martial should proceed, and Major Duffy hides his own views on the rituation.
